Where are the newest gosh darn government figures regarding excess mortality????? Regarding new average lifespan of Americans? Where????? If the government figures show that there is an excess mortality from 2018 rates and the average lifespan is the same as 2018, then fine. Show us. Just show us.

Since covid I have been thinking more about childhood mass trauma. For example telling all the boomer school kids to hide under their desks in case of nuclear annihilation that could come at any moment. This modern version where children grow up in a time when seemingly healthy people die at any moment from "natural causes" and everyone pretends it's normal is next level. How will it impact how the next generations think and behave?
